POLICE HUNTING PRIEST'S WATCH

Father Cirringione's Full Story Convinces Officials that He Was Imprisoned and They Start Search.

HE SEEKS BOY WHO MET HIM WITH KIDNAPPERS.

Wagon with Seats in It in Which Victim Was Taken from Dungeon Is Being Sought by Detectives.

There now seems to be no doubt that the Rev. Joseph Cirringione was kidnapped and imprisoned.

After listening to a straightforward story told by the priest at St. Vincent's Hospital, the police have come to the conclusion that his story is true, and they are actively seeking the four mer who kidnapped and held him captive from Friday night until Monday morning. He will aid them all he can, he furnished by Father Cirringione. The police have these clues to work on: Rocco Pana, sexton of the Church o the Immaculate Conception, and cousin of Father Cirringione, heard the man who called for the priest talking with him at the door.

While walking along First street with the man, and before they reached the carriage, the priest says he met a boy who recognized him and tipped his hat. The police are seeking this boy.

Father Cirringione's gold watch and chain and his gold-handled cane were taken by the kidnappers. The watch was once pawned by the priest, and he has told the police where he pawned it. They can secure the number of the watch at the pawnshop.

Will Find Boy.

With these clues to work on the police have started on a systematic search for the kidnappers, Father Cirringione himself will take an active part in the search, and says he will find the boy who met him on Friday night and who will corroborate that part of his story as soon as he is able to leave the hos-

A reason for the kidnapping is contained in the statement made by Father Cirringione to the police.

On Oct. 20 the corner-stone of the new church was laid. Archbishop Farley and other prominent churchmen were there, and Father Cirringione made a speech, in which he outlined the work of uilding the new church. He publicly arriounced that he had made arrangements to borrow $15,000 for the purpose of completing the church.

Two days after this public announcement of the loan the priest received the first of the letters demanding $3,-000. He was ordered to walk in a certain direction in Bronx Park, and there he would meet a man to whom he was to pay the money.

In all his stories of the treatment he received in the basement where the kidnappers kept him, the priest has asked him where the money was. They mentioned the $15,000, and demanded that he tell them what he did with it. Their surprise at finding only the $200 belonging to his sister and the the fact that they thought he had sepured the loar, and had the money in his pockets.

Debts Were Few. The suggestion made originally by police to the effect that the priest

had become mentally deranged, and had gone away of his own accord be cause of financial troubles, is utterly refuted by the fact that his debts were fe v. and that he could have had the money to pay them at any time by simply applying to Archbishop Farley. The statement that he had to support his family has also been denied by the priest. The father and sisters live at No. 300 West Seventeenth street. The girls all work, and it is their money which supports the home. That they are well able to do this is proven by the fact that the $200 taken from the priest by the kidnappers was given to him by them as a marriage portion for Marianne, the eldest sister, who is shortly to be married.

Dr. Laseaux. of Flower Hospital, who was called to the East Fifty-first street station when the priest was first brough there, and Doctors Conley and O'Rourke, of St. Vincent's Hospital, believe the priest's story implicitly. They say he has been perfectly sane at all times since his disappearance, and that his stories bear every mark of truth.

Dr. O'Rourke cilminates the original rolice theory that Father Cirringlone money to pay them at any time by Dr. O'Rourke climinates the original bolice theory that Father Cirringione wandered away aimiessly while suffering from temporary insanity. He says there is no sign of mental derangement, and that the priest's excitement was merely due to the treatment he had received and the lack of food.

he was kept was somewhere in the Bronx.

There is little dowot that the kidnapping was the work of a well-organizer band. Father Cirringione says that at times during his captivity there were fully ten men in the room where he was kept. The man who argued for his death is an Italian, the others, the priest believes, were English or at least the other three who kidnapped him were.

Looking for a Wagon.

The police to-day are trying to find the wagon which the priest says was used by the men who kidnapped him. He describes it as a covered wagon, something like those used by grocers. It was light and covered, and had seats inside. He believes the house in which he was kept was somewhere in the Bronx.

There is little dowot that the kidnapping was the work of a well-organized band. Father Cirringione says that at times during his captivity there were fully ten men in the room where he was kept. The man who argued for list death is an Italian, the others, the other three who kidn, or at least the other three who ken and the says the ballow or at least the other three who ken.
